

AN ESSAY ON KARMA: What Goes Around Comes Around

---

The idea that we reap the consequences of our actions has been around for thousands of years, or longer.

In Hinduism, Jainism, and Buddhism, the principle of cause and effect, or experiencing the consequences of one's intention and actions, is known as karma. Christian bible texts plagiarized from these and other cultures also had Karma, but was deleted by the 3rd council of Constantinople about 300 AD; it conflicted with the dogma of one shot in life at heaven or hell that religion preaches.

If you sow goodness, the karmic principle states that you will reap goodness as well. Inversely, bad deeds will give you negative consequences. You get what you have coming in this life; that's how it works. People, nations, groups all come under this law of Karma. Pray to Jesus to forgive you sins on Sunday then fuck over people the other 6 days does not excuse you from karma; that is a fact. The same Hypocrisy of 'Peace and love' pausing a war or other Xmas day to screw over, kill, murder, torture the world 364 days before and after sees Karma as well. I believe US is suffering a Karma for its actions long overdue as any other criminal: Hitler, Stalin, Mao, etc.

Throughout history, people have tried to understand the influence of karma in their lives. Mostly in denial; Karma is far more than people want to accept. Lies, theft, gossip, betrayal, irresponsibility, etc. all comes back. In sharing their experiences with the rest of the world, they have gifted us with profound quotes reflect the truth about the principle and reminds us “what goes around comes around.”

Below is a collection of karma quotes that remind us to live according to the path of kindness, generosity, justice, and positivity. Cause and effect for you science minded people is Karma. You smoke for 60 years to die a slow painful death by cancer is karma, cause & effect. Your irresponsibility in smoking is cause, death by cancer is the effect. Ancestral wounds from being born into a bloodline affected by diseases inherited via DNA and Epigenetics of inherited transgenerational traumas from a lineage persecuted by genocide ie; native American Indian & Jewish Holocausts, slavery, persecution etc. is another cause and effect. Karma is merciless, do the crime you get the consequences in this life and via bloodline choices consequences from ancestors that you receive and pass on to your descendants along with any baggage you created in this life. As a soul, you were not there or will be there but the bodies of your family bloodlines receive those consequences anyway. Same as in this life, as a soul you were not there but your body was. One karma I see in this era is abortion and infanticide by women. More mass murders in US alone than Stalin or Hitler committed in their genocides. Voof there is gonna be a price to pay for that inhumanity. Karma is perfect sweet justice. I'm not sure if Humans will face judgement as a race or individually but it will be brutal.

Below are wise words from philosophers, teachers, celebrities, artists, and other people of influence who have experienced how karma works in their lives. Personally I have observed it all my life without fully understanding what I witnessed. Karma is more extreme and broader than most people realize or wish to accept. Nobody gets away with anything in this hell, that's a brutal fact. What you put into the world always comes back to you. Karma and the universe do not care about your feelings, victim excuses, your education. Strip all that away and only the real you remains: a soul. All egoic dies away at death leaving only the soul to transcend out of this place or reincarnate for another try; nobody fails in this perfect system. You either become worthy to choose to leave here via free will or to remain. A soul cannot become worthy to leave earth hell without also becoming worthy to make the free will choice to stay. That is the polarity of life. One must know what is to know what is not and vice versa. Everything here seeks to distract you from knowledge of the truth which when employed via free will sets you free. Understand this whole essay, quotes included is each individual's effort through their understanding to convey their reality about karma, as each understands it in the person's reality. That is why all the religious, philosophical and guru teaching are so confusing to an outsider. It is not your reality. There is no 'the way' only your way!!!! Wayne Dyer said, '[What another does is their karma; what you do is your karma].' Only you know what goes on under your skin and in your head. Nobody else has a clue; not even your shrink. A student of Freud's once asked him to name one person psychotherapy cured. Freud never gave an answer because he knew the whole psychotherapy thing is a fraud, like religion. Now days the field is nothing more than old time religion in white coats, with a scrip pad and fancy vernacular industry language. If you cannot impress with wisdom, baffle them with bullshit hidden in ten dollar words. We have been lied to since birth. IE: 'don't get mad get even, eye for eye, ad nauseam. A clever offshoot is Dr. Peter Breggin's response, "I don't get mad or even I get factual." Ghandi said, "An eye for an eye leaves the world blind....." These nuggets of truth reveal that the truth cannot be hidden but one has to wade through a quagmire of lies to find it.

Note: some people understand Karma as the Law of Attraction. In a way this is so; what you put out attracts back to you, no exceptions. The Law of Attraction is more involved though. Most people see it only from a self serving angle: I want to be rich or something and think a desire will attract it to them without any effort on their part. Bubble bursting time; without conscious effort and hard work nothing in life is free and for nothing. You will win and lose in this game; ask any winner and you find they have lost at some time, probably many times before succeeding.

The following quotes are according to each person's reality:

1. "You cannot control the results, only your actions." – Allan Lokos
2. "There's a natural law of karma that vindictive people, who go out of their way to hurt others, will end up broke and alone." – Sylvester Stallone
3. "Attachment and aversion are the root causes of karma, and karma originates from infatuation. Karma is the root cause of birth and death, and these are said to be the source of misery. None can escape the effect of their past karma." – Mahavira
4. "The meaning of karma is in the intention. The intention behind action is what matters." – The Gita
5. "Karma has no menu. You get served what you deserve." – Unknown
6. "How people treat you is their karma; how you react is yours." – Wayne Dyer
7. "Someday people will ask me what is the key to my success...and I will simply say, "Good Karma." – K. Crumley

8. "The Law of Karma is also called the Law of Cause and Effect, Action and Reaction and: as you sow, so shall you reap." – Sham Hinduja
9. "Karma is a tricky thing. To serve Karma, one must repay good Karma to others." – M. R. Mathias
10. "Karma moves in two directions. If we act virtuously, the seed we plant will result in happiness. If we act non-virtuously, suffering results." – Sakyong Mipham
11. "Stop blaming others for your pains, sufferings and unhappiness. They are because of you, your karma, and your own disposition." – Girdhar Joshi
12. "I guess one of the ways that karma works is that it finds out what you are most afraid of and then makes that happen eventually." – Cheech Marin
13. "This is your karma. You do not understand now, but you will understand later." – H. Haven Rose
14. "Karma comes after everyone eventually. You can't get away with screwing people over your whole life, I don't care who you are. What goes around comes around. That's how it works. Sooner or later the universe will serve you the revenge that you deserve." – Jessica Brody
15. "Remember to honor the hand which reached out for you when you needed it, by being that hand to someone else who is struggling." – Greg Dutilly
16. "Even chance meetings are the result of karma... Things in life are fated by our previous lives. That even in the smallest events there's no such thing as coincidence." – Haruki Murakami
17. "What goes around comes around. And sometimes you get what's coming around." – Jim Butcher
18. "Don't waste time on revenge. The people who hurt you will eventually face their own karma."
– Unknown
19. "Live a good and honorable life. Then, when you are older you can look back and enjoy it a second time." – Dalai Lama
20. "I do not believe in karma. However, I practice it every day because it tricks me into being a better person!" – Clint Diffie
21. "Not only is there often a right and wrong, but what goes around does come around, Karma exists." – Donald Van De Mark
22. "Karma is a cruel mistress." – Kelley York
23. "As she has planted, so does she harvest; such is the field of karma." – Sri Guru Granth Sahib
24. "You cannot do harm to someone because someone has done harm to you. You will pay just like they will." – Ericka Williams
25. "It is a rule of life that we eventually become victims of the evil we do to others." – Wayne Gerard Trotman
26. "Problems or successes, they all are the results of our own actions. Karma. The philosophy of action is that no one else is the giver of peace or happiness. One's own karma, one's own actions are responsible to come to bring either happiness or success or whatever." – Maharishi Mahesh Yogi

27. "If your actions were to boomerang back on you instantly, would you still act the same?" – Alexandra Katehakis

If your actions were to boomerang back on you instantly, would you still act the same?" – Alexandra Katehakis

28. "Every act done, no matter how insignificant, will eventually return to the doer with equal impact. Good will be returned with good; evil with evil." – Nishan Panwar

29. "We must always reflect only what we wish to see reflected within us." – Robin Sacredfire

30. "Karma is the universe's way of letting you know that you just thought you got away with it." – Unknown

31. "Many believe in karma but I take it to a whole different level." – Vincent Alexandria

32. "When you plant a seed of love, it is you that blossoms." – Ma Jaya Sati Bhagavati

33. "Karma bides it's time. You will always have to watch out. Karma is unforgiving and always gets payback." – Benjamin Bayani

34. "Show a little faith in someone when they need it. It's amazing how it comes back around to you." – Garon Whited

35. "I heard that karma is vengeful and is also a light sleeper." – Rudy Francisco

36. "As long as karma exists, the world changes. There will always be karma to be taken care of." – Nina Hagen

37. "Men are not punished for their sins, but by them." – Elbert Hubbard

38. "Karma is extremely efficient, if one is extremely patient." – Efrat Cybulkiewicz

39. "The love you send into the world, you will find, is the love that returns to you." – Avina Celeste

40. "Karma is justice. It does not reward or punish. It shows no favoritism because we all have to earn all that we receive. Karma doesn't predestine anything. We create our own causes and Karma adjusts the effects with perfect balance." – Mary T. Browne

41. "But this was what happened when you didn't want to visit and confront the past: the past starts visiting and confronting you." – Bret Easton Ellis

42. "A boomerang returns back to the person who throws it." – Vera Nazarian

43. "The universe does not carry debts, it always returns back to you what you gave it." – Drishti Bablani

44. "Karma is not just about the troubles, but also about surmounting them." – Rick Springfield

Karma is not just about the troubles, but also about surmounting them." – Rick Springfield

45. "So never rule out retribution. But never expect it." – Vera Nazarian

46. "Karma is karma. Karma is in life. You do the wrong things, you get the wrong things out of it." – Antonio Brown

47. "Do not attempt to help those who have not asked for your help. Interfering with their own karma will result in a never-ending spiritual war from which you can only lose." – Robin Sacredfire

48. "Someone should have mentioned to him that karma was a venomous witch." – Courtney Cole
49. "In this world, it is not worth finding anyone's faults. One becomes bound (by karma) by finding faults." – Dada Bhagwan
50. "By each crime and every kindness, we birth our future." – David Mitchell
51. "Let the players play, let the haters hate and let karma handle their fate." – Unknown
52. "Nothing amuses people more than a cocky guy who starts losing." – Criss Jami

53. "Your karma should be good, and everything else will follow. Your good karma will always win over your bad luck." – Rohit Shetty
54. "I believe in Karma. If the good is sown, the good is collected. When positive things are made, that returns well." – Yannick Noah
55. "My actions are my only true belongings. I cannot escape the consequences of my actions. My actions are the ground upon which I stand." – Thich Nhat Hanh
56. "Ancestral karma is not something that is permanently ingrained; with conscientious effort it can be modified and healed. It only requires you to be proactive and intentional in your efforts to heal." – Dr. Steven Farmer
57. "Learn to see. Realize that everything connects to everything else." – Leonardo da Vinci

59 The Divine Law controls what is called karma, but it is much broader and "harsher" than people want to accept. Example: someone who gets cancer and dies a slow painful death deserves it, that person is being corrected, it is for his own good. Sounds "harsh"? That's the way it works. Just because it comes across as negative in this realm does not mean it is negative in the big picture. Revelations of an Elite Insider.

60. However the word "love" is misunderstood....it is not meant to be the love in human terms which humans are enslaved by. That is the corrupt version of the real one. Revelations of an Elite Insider.

[ever wonder why human relationships are so disastrous? Women think sex is love, it is not. She uses 'love' as a weapon, to punish or reward, and worse. Is it any wonder why the karma is so brutal to those involved with her especially to born and unborn children. Romance is a lie and fantasy born of the 18th century post French Revolution to control masses. Before that for millennia Religion served this purpose. Yahweh represents an age where mass-control was taking shape. Furthermore, if the name of an entity is public, it means was is fabricated. People still fight whether Jesus was real or fabricated to divide and control the masses. The perfect slave says, "I am not a slave." The more masses are divided the easier it is to exploit and rule over them. What do you see today?]

The following chart is another interpretation of Karma. Once again this it per someone's reality of the world. All religion, philosophy and such is the same. All is open for interpretation as understood only by the interpreter. You see everything in your reality much different that what I do in my reality. All human interaction is a shared reality, of sorts. Projective identification, psychological transference, ad infinitum is made of this shared reality stuff. All the king's doctor's, cult guru's and queen's cult nurses don't understand one whit about you. I don't care how many letters exist behind her name or degrees she has on the wall. A piece of paper stating the circus monkey is trained to perform under the bread, wine and circus tents distracting masses.

They are all fakir 'celebrities' in white no different from the pharisees of old - parasites ruling over masses for personal gain as a living. Only you can understand your reality and what goes on inside you as your personal sacred truth. It is your way not theirs or the way. These phonies pilot this titanic into the icebergs taking down the whole show, while the band plays on to distract the condemned. Glare of celebrity spotlight is the only effective response as a distraction away from mass crimes that are committed in secret and kept hidden from prying eyes; or the doomed from facing facts that the ship is sinking without salvage or lifeboats.

The 12 Laws of Karma

01

The Great Law

The Great Law, also known as The Law of Cause and Effect, fits what most of us traditionally think of when we hear the word karma. The energy you put out into the world is what comes back to you, whether you're conscious of it or not.

02

The Law of Creation

The Law of Creation states that you must take action to create the life you desire. You are a powerful creator, and you have the power to co-create your life along with the universe. But too often, we sit back, hoping things will work out but not actively doing anything about it. You must become an active participant in your story.

03

The Law of Humility

The Law of Humility is all about accepting that you have created your current reality through actions, choices, and the energy you've emitted. It's about not blaming others for everything that's seemingly going wrong in your life but taking responsibility for your current place in life. In order to change something, you must first accept it.

04

The Law of Growth

The Law of Growth says that there is only one thing you truly have control over: yourself. If you want to make a positive mark on the world, don't start with what you can do externally; start with what you can do internally. To change the world, start with changing yourself by seeking true and meaningful growth.

05

The Law of Responsibility

Can you take responsibility for your current life circumstances, good and bad? The Law of Responsibility states that rather than looking for external reasons and excuses for why something might be wrong in your life, you must look internally. Because it doesn't start out there; it starts in here. In me. In you. In all of us.

06

The Law of Connection

The Law of Connection states that everything in the universe, and everything in your life, is connected; your past, present, and future are all connected. No action or decision is insignificant because every action effects who you become. Your actions yesterday affect the person you are today, and your actions today affect the person you are tomorrow.

07

The Law of Focus

The Law of Focus states that you should focus on one thing at a time, and if your focus is on spiritual values, you will not have space in your life to focus on lesser feelings such as greed, jealousy, and anger.

08

The Law of Giving & Hospitality

The Law of Giving & Hospitality calls on you to demonstrate what you believe in and become the embodiment of your genuine desires for this world. If you envision a world filled with peace and love, give peace and love to all. If you believe in selfless kindness and generosity, be selflessly kind and generous to others. Let your actions reflect your deepest and truest beliefs. If you want to see change in the world, become the change by giving what you seek.

09

The Law of Here and Now

The Law of Here and Now states that true peace of mind comes from living in the present moment, and you cannot embrace the present moment if you're always looking back into the past or ahead into the future. Reliving the past prevents you from engaging with your life just as it is right now. And when you're constantly focusing on the old, you're unable to create the new.

10

The Law of Change

Have you ever heard the phrase "history repeats itself"? This concept is at the core of the Law of Change, which states that history will continue to repeat itself until you've learned the lessons you're meant to learn and take actionable steps to change the pattern.

11

The Law of Patience and Reward

The Law of Patience and Reward is rooted in the belief that consistency, patience, and continuing to show up day after day, even when you don't see the rewards today, will bring true joy, peace, and fulfillment.

12

The Law of Significance and Inspiration

You matter. Your voice matters. Your presence matters. You were born with specific goals and talents that only you possess. Only you have lived your unique experiences. And that dream that's in your heart? It's there for a reason. The Law of Significance and Inspiration states that every single one of us contributes to the greater whole. We all play a part in contributing to the highest good of the world. Your specific gift and purpose matter.

SHIP OF FOOLS

by Ted Kaczynski

Published by OFF! Magazine, a zine produced by students at SUNY Binghamton and edited by Tim La Pietra.

Once upon a time, the captain and the mates of a ship grew so vain of their seamanship, so full of hubris and so impressed with themselves, that they went mad. They turned the ship north and sailed until they met with icebergs and dangerous floes, and they kept sailing north into more and more perilous waters, solely in order to give themselves opportunities to perform ever-more-brilliant feats of seamanship.

As the ship reached higher and higher latitudes, the passengers and crew became increasingly uncomfortable. They began quarreling among themselves and complaining of the conditions under which they lived.

"Shiver me timbers," said an able seaman, "if this ain't the worst voyage I've ever been on. The deck is slick with ice; when I'm on lookout the wind cuts through me jacket like a knife; every time I reef the foresail I blamed-near freeze me fingers; and all I get for it is a miserable five shillings a month!"

"You think you have it bad!" said a lady passenger. "I can't sleep at night for the cold. Ladies on this ship don't get as many blankets as the men. It isn't fair!"

A Mexican sailor chimed in: "¡Chingado! I'm only getting half the wages of the Anglo seamen. We need plenty of food to keep us warm in this climate, and I'm not getting my share; the Anglos get more. And the worst of it is that the mates always give me orders in English instead of Spanish."

"I have more reason to complain than anybody," said an American Indian sailor. "If the palefaces hadn't robbed me of my ancestral lands, I wouldn't even be on this ship, here among the icebergs and arctic winds. I would just be paddling a canoe on a nice, placid lake. I deserve compensation. At the very least, the captain should let me run a crap game so that I can make some money."

The bosom spoke up: "Yesterday the first mate called me a 'fruit' just because I suck cocks. I have a right to suck cocks without being called names for it!"

It's not only humans who are mistreated on this ship," interjected an animal-lover among the passengers, her voice quivering with indignation. "Why, last week I saw the second mate kick the ship's dog twice!"

One of the passengers was a college professor. Wringing his hands he exclaimed,

"All this is just awful! It's immoral! It's racism, sexism, speciesism, homophobia, and exploitation of the working class! It's discrimination! We must have social justice: Equal wages for the Mexican sailor, higher wages for all sailors, compensation for the Indian, equal blankets for the ladies, a guaranteed right to suck cocks, and no more kicking the dog!"

"Yes, yes!" shouted the passengers. "Aye-aye!" shouted the crew. "It's discrimination! We have to demand our rights!"

The cabin boy cleared his throat.

"Ahem. You all have good reasons to complain. But it seems to me that what we really have to do is get this ship turned around and headed back south, because if we keep going north we're sure to be wrecked sooner or later, and then your wages, your blankets, and your right to suck cocks won't do you any good, because we'll all drown."

But no one paid any attention to him, because he was only the cabin boy.

The captain and the mates, from their station on the poop deck, had been watching and listening. Now they smiled and winked at one another, and at a gesture from the captain the third mate came down from the poop deck, sauntered over to where the passengers and crew were gathered, and shouldered his way in amongst them. He put a very serious expression on his face and spoke thusly:

"We officers have to admit that some really inexcusable things have been happening on this ship. We hadn't realized how bad the situation was until we heard your complaints. We are men of good will and want to do right by you. But – well – the captain is rather conservative and set in his ways, and may have to be prodded a bit before he'll make any substantial changes. My personal opinion is that if you protest vigorously – but always peacefully and without violating any of the ship's rules – you would shake the captain out of his inertia and force him to address the problems of which you so justly complain."

Having said this, the third mate headed back toward the poop deck. As he went, the passengers and crew called after him, "Moderate! Reformer! Goody-liberal! Captain's stooge! Misogynist!" But they nevertheless did as he said. They gathered in a body before the poop deck, shouted insults at the officers, and demanded their rights: "I want higher wages and better working conditions," cried the able seaman. "Equal blankets for women," cried the lady passenger. "I want to receive my orders in Spanish," cried the Mexican sailor. "I want the right to run a crap game," cried the Indian sailor. "I don't want to be called a fruit," cried the bosom. "No more kicking the dog," cried the animal lover. "Revolution now," cried the professor.

The captain and the mates huddled together and conferred for several minutes, winking, nodding and smiling at one another all the while. Then the captain stepped to the front of the poop deck and, with a great show of benevolence, announced that the able seaman's wages would be raised to six shillings a month; the Mexican sailor's wages would be raised to two-thirds the wages of an Anglo seaman, and the order to reef the foresail would be given in Spanish; lady passengers would receive one more blanket; the Indian sailor would be allowed to run a crap game on Saturday nights; the bosom wouldn't be called a fruit as long as he kept his cock sucking strictly private; and the dog wouldn't be kicked unless he did something really naughty, such as stealing food from the galley.

The passengers and crew celebrated these concessions as a great victory, but the next morning, they were again feeling dissatisfied.

"Six shillings a month is a pittance, and I still freeze me fingers when I reef the foresail," grumbled the able seaman. "I'm still not getting the same wages as the Anglo's, or enough food for this climate," said the Mexican sailor. "We women still don't have enough blankets to keep us warm," said the liberated lady passenger. The other crewmen and passengers voiced similar complaints, and the professor egged them on.

When they were done, the cabin boy spoke up – louder this time so that the others could not easily ignore him:

"It's really terrible that the dog gets kicked for stealing a bit of bread from the galley, and that women don't have equal blankets, and that the able seaman gets his fingers frozen; and I don't see why the bosom shouldn't suck cocks if he wants to. But look how thick the icebergs are now, and how the wind blows harder and harder! We've got to turn this ship back toward the south, because if we keep going north we'll be wrecked and drowned."

"Oh yes," said the bosom, "It's just so awful that we keep heading north. But why should I have to keep cock sucking in the closet? Why should I be called a fruit? Ain't I as good as everyone else?"

"Sailing north is terrible," said the liberated lady passenger. "But don't you see? That's exactly why women need more blankets to keep them warm. I demand equal blankets for women now!"

"It's quite true," said the professor, "that sailing to the north imposes great hardships on all of us. But changing course toward the south would be unrealistic. You can't turn back the clock. We must find a mature way of dealing with the situation."

"Look," said the cabin boy, "If we let those four madmen up on the poop deck have their way, we'll all be drowned. If we ever get the ship out of danger, then we can worry about working conditions, blankets for women, and the right to suck cocks. But first we've got to get this vessel turned around. If a few of us get together, make a plan, and show some courage, we can save ourselves. It wouldn't take many of us – six or eight would do. We could charge the poop, chuck those lunatics overboard, and turn the ship to the south."

The professor elevated his nose and said sternly, "I don't believe in violence. It's immoral."

"It's unethical ever to use violence," said the bosom.

"I'm terrified of violence," said the lady passenger.

The captain and the mates had been watching and listening all the while. At a signal from the captain, the third mate stepped down to the main deck. He went about among the passengers and crew, telling them that there were still many problems on the ship.

"We have made much progress," he said, "But much remains to be done. Working conditions for the able seaman are still hard, the Mexican still isn't getting the same wages as the Anglos, the women still don't have quite as many blankets as the men, the Indian's Saturday-night crap game is a paltry compensation for his lost lands, it's unfair to the bosom that he has to keep his cock sucking in the closet, and the dog still gets kicked at times.

"I think the captain needs to be prodded again. It would help if you all would put on another protest – as long as it remains nonviolent."

As the third mate walked back toward the stern, the passengers and the crew shouted insults after him, but they nevertheless did what he said and gathered in front of the poop deck for another protest. They ranted and raved and brandished their fists, and they even threw a rotten egg at the captain (which he skillfully dodged).

After hearing their complaints, the captain and the mates huddled for a conference, during which they winked and grinned broadly at one another. Then the captain stepped to the front of the poop deck and announced that the able seaman would be given gloves to keep his fingers warm, the Mexican sailor would receive wages equal to three-fourths the wages of an Anglo seaman, the women would receive yet another blanket, the Indian sailor could run a crap game on Saturday and Sunday nights, the bosom would be allowed to suck cocks publicly after dark, and no one could kick the dog without special permission from the captain.

The passengers and crew were ecstatic over this great revolutionary victory, but by the next morning they were again feeling dissatisfied and began grumbling about the same old hardships.

The cabin boy this time was getting angry.

"You damn fools!" he shouted. "Don't you see what the captain and the mates are doing? They're keeping you occupied with your trivial grievances about blankets and wages and the dog being kicked so that you won't think about what is really wrong with this ship --- that it's getting farther and farther to the north and we're all going to be drowned. If just a few of you would come to your senses, get together, and charge the poop deck, we could turn this ship around and save ourselves. But all you do is whine about petty little issues like working conditions and crap games and the right to suck cocks."

The passengers and the crew were incensed.

"Petty!!" cried the Mexican, "Do you think it's reasonable that I get only three-fourths the wages of an Anglo sailor? Is that petty?"

"How can you call my grievance trivial?" shouted the bosun. "Don't you know how humiliating it is to be called a fruit?"

"Kicking the dog is not a 'petty little issue!'" screamed the animal-lover. "It's heartless, cruel, and brutal!"

"Alright then," answered the cabin boy. "These issues are not petty and trivial. Kicking the dog is cruel and brutal and it is humiliating to be called a fruit. But in comparison to our real problem – in comparison to the fact that the ship is still heading north – your grievances are petty and trivial, because if we don't get this ship turned around soon, we're all going to drown."

"Fascist!" said the professor.

"Counterrevolutionary, misogynist!" said the liberated lady passenger. And all of the passengers and crew chimed in one after another, calling the cabin boy a fascist and a counterrevolutionary. They pushed him away and went back to grumbling about wages, and about blankets for women, and about the right to suck cocks, and about how the dog was treated. The ship kept sailing north, and after a while it was crushed between two icebergs, the ship sank and everyone drowned. What do you see happening in America today?!

© Ted Kaczynski, 1999

The Monopoly.

Education doesn't make you smarter.

My grandmother was a wonderful person. She taught me how to play the game Monopoly.™ She understood that the name of the game is to acquire. She accumulated everything she could and eventually controlled the board. Then she would take my last dollar and always look me in the eye to say the same thing: “One day, you will learn to play the game.” My first summer as a newly minted Feminist fresh out of college, I played Monopoly with a friend almost every day, all day long, and that summer I learned to play the game. I came to understand that the only way to win is to make a total commitment to acquisition. I came to understand that money, possessions and power – are the way that you keep score. By the end of that summer, I was more ruthless than my illiterate, world smart, old fashioned grandmother... to win the game, I learned to bend and break people and the rules. I sat down with her to play that fall. I took everything she had. I destroyed her financially, psychologically, and spiritually. I watched her lose every dollar and quit in gross defeat. Then she had one more thing to teach me. She said, “Now it all goes back in the box. All those houses and hotels; all the railroads and utility companies... All that property, political power, highbrow education and wonderful money... Now it all goes back into the box.” But! I worked so hard to get it all; I do not want it to go back in the box! “*SIGH*!,’ she said, “None of it was really yours. Nothing in life really belongs to anyone at all; it never has or ever will. Nobody ever left here with a speck of anything from this place. You got all heated up about it for a while. But the game was around a long time before you sat down at the board and it will be here long after you’re gone: players come, players go – the game always ends the same: everything goes back into the box. Houses and cars... Titles and clothes... Even your body.” Suddenly, I realized the fact that everything I clutch, consume, hoard, fight, beg and compete for is going back into the box; I lose it all. Therefore – ask yourself; when you finally get the ultimate promotion or meet the ultimate person, have achieved the ultimate education, when you have made the ultimate purchase, when you buy the ultimate home, when you have stored up financial security and power and climbed the Ideologue ladder of success to the highest Ideological rung that you can possibly climb [a perfect feminist] ... and the thrill wears off – and it always wears off – then what? How far must you walk down that road before understanding where it leads? I never understood what people are thinking when screwing over everyone else for percentages of the take, action, or loot. Surely, you realize – it is never enough! One forfeits everything making the final trip out of here in a decorated box, covered with flowers, riding in the back of a black limousine, to spend eternity in a graveyard ENCHAINED by all that baggage. So one must ask these questions: What is the point of living! What matters?

Cancer is nature's way of thinning out the herds; it is totally equal, unbiased, non-subjective, non-denominational, non-ideological, unlawful, does not care about you or your feelings and nothing can change that; The Crab loves people. Once it's grabbed you with its pincers, it won't let go till you croak; 'straight from the operating table on to the morgue slab. everyone dies to face the maker; in only one visit, a person loses everything: all their personal status, reputation and plans for the future; the universe does not care; nothing matters; nobody feels your pain; nobody cares either; life is worthlessly - pointless beyond that experience; when suddenly you realize that 'I lived that pointless experience all wrong' being true to others and not to self in toto; it is then when your whole happy life, so well thought out, so harmonious and useful, ends as a pile of dust scattered by the wind; sometimes you eat the crab; sometimes the crab eats you.....unknown.

THAT'S ALL FOLKS! OUT OF THE BLUE INTO THE BLACK YONDER.

